THE CROSS AT LAST IS MERCIFUL.
 From the shores of France the hospital ship has sailed for Rotterdam, where more supplies, doctors and nurses will be unloaded for the German army, for the Red Cross binds up the wounds of all combatants alike and does not make any distinction between race or color.

MILLIONS FOR DEPENDENTS.
 When the Democrats were out they solemnly declared that merit and ability should be the rule of their appointments. When they got in, they threw the rule and the pledge overboard, and appropriated nearly four million dollars to the spoils system.—Daily Telegram, Clarksburg.

MISSIONARIES NEEDED.
 Applications for divorce continue to outnumber marriage licenses issued in Raleigh county. The columns of the Register this week show three licenses granted since last week's issue. In the same time seven suits for divorce were filed with the clerk of the circuit court.—Raleigh Register.

THE FUNERAL HAS BEEN POSTPONED, LUKE
 Dear Luke: You are hereby invited to attend the funeral of Miss Sal Oon on November 28, 1914. Her death was caused by putting too much faith in Hayseeds. Please omit flowers. Burial from her late residence, in Maysville, Ky. The undertakers are Bootleg and Blind Tiger.—Reader.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SOME SPORTS ARE THE BRITISH.
 An incorrigible sportsman is John Bull! No wonder that the French were amazed to see athletic representatives in two British battalions utilize a day's lull in the fighting to play out a foot ball match "in the result of which considerable money changed hands." Under such circumstances, Mr. Kipling might be disposed to speak a little less of the muddled oafs and unweildy fools of 's foot ball and cricket fields. Was it not ton who said that England's battles were the playing fields of Eton and Rugby?—Ike Sentinel.

A LITTLE BELGIUM!
 Little Belgium! A town is built and grows with age, filled with fruitful gardens. A war Chief tears up a scrap of paper, uns his guns and knocks the cathedral, the hall, the university, the villas of the rich and omes of the poor into a heap. Under the heap of the inhabitants lie. From under it some nem crawl. About it a few weep. Away from any creep or hobble to devastated fields, splinted forests, the ruins of other cities. Homeless, pless, hapless, they are guilty only of having h their nests at the edge of a crater.—Courier-Journal.

WORTH NOTING.
 Talk about "safety first," can this record be beaten? The Pennsylvania system, which includes Wheeling, in the six months ending July 1, carried 87,000,000 passengers, nearly the total population of the country, without killing a single passenger in a train accident. Look at the automobile record in comparison.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

GERMAN THREAT TO CRUSH ENGLAND.
 Vice Admiral Kirohoff of the German navy, says that France has to be beaten, but not wiped up, but to crush England entirely is German's final aim. It will take a long time, but the result will finally be that England is reduced to a minor place among the nations. This expression of the German admiral blisters with words of hate. He is not concerned about France or Russia. They can stay, but Great Britain has to go. There is no room for her on the planet. Many lives, it will take to secure this, and fabulous treasure, but they will be forthcoming. There will be no cost great enough to move Germany from its purpose to destroy Great Britain. We don't believe civilization will allow it. Great Britain has her faults as well as Germany, but she has equally as many virtues. She has greatly assisted the force of civilization and while she may have been selfish at times, she has not been more so than other nations have been. The admiral's threat will not be carried out.—Ohio State Journal.

FOOLISH PHILOSOPHY.
 A hen-pecked man: A man who is associated with a woman he must either whip or obey.
 Every time you hear of some men, it is in connection with a statement that they are in another row.

Some men submit to a large acquaintance as they take a pill; that it may do them good in the future.
 Men object to their wives spending too much in dry goods stores; still, they do not wish their wives to carry economy to the point of looking slovenly.

Money is filthy here, but that fact doesn't prevent a man from cleaning up a fortune.

When a fellow has the reputation of being a lobster he is lucky to keep out of hot water.

The man who accepts an office as the gift of the people shouldn't look a gift horse in the mouth.

Even the stingy man can't very well make trouble for himself without giving his friends some.

WAS BULL MOOSE, NOW PLAIN BULL.
 "The way the Bull Moose are coming over to the Democratic fold or going back to the Republican party once more," says Harry J. Meyers, of Covington, "tickles the living daylights out of me. It's hard work keeping them placed though. Once they registered Republican, then it was Bull Moose; now its Democrat or Republican once more.
 "I am reminded of the story of the loony one in the retreat for the demented.
 "'Salute the Sultan,' he called out to the visitor.
 "'The visitor laughed. 'The last time I saw you,' he said, 'you claimed to be the Czar.'
 "'Yes, I was,' came the answer. 'But I left Russia and came to Turkey.'
 "'But,' the visitor interposed, 'I saw you another time before today. The second time you said you were the Kaiser.'
 "'Oh, yes,' explained the Bug, 'I did. But that was by my second wife.'—Louisville Times.

A BIT OF HISTORY.
 The German Ambassador at Washington wrote an article for an American magazine a few weeks ago in which he defended upon the plea of military necessity, the violation of Belgian neutrality by the Germans. "Does anyone suppose," he asked, "that France or England would have kept such a treaty inviolate in such circumstances." He proceeded to berate the English for what he called their hypocrisies.
 The New York Herald gives a bit of history which bears upon the matter discussed so confidently by Count von Bernstorff.

Says the Herald:
 "When Bismarck was asked by Great Britain in 1870 whether Germany would respect the neutrality of Belgium the Iron Chancellor gave prompt reply that such a question was wholly superfluous in view of the treaties in force. At that time the chief concern of Great Britain acting as intermediary in behalf of Belgium, was directed toward France. France gave prompt assurance that Belgium's neutrality would be respected, as Germany did. France went further. When the last of her armies was wedged up against the Belgian frontier, with every other means of escape cut off, it surrendered rather than violate the neutrality of Belgium.
 "In dropping his 'pilot' the present German Emperor seems to have cast overboard the principle of respect for treaties, for which Bismarck stood firm."
 Here is an answer for the German Ambassador. If treaties are not to be kept, why have treaties at all? It seems to us that one of the fundamentals of civilization is willingness to keep sacred a covenant, an oath, or one's word.—Frankfort State Journal.

MEDICAL AUTHORITY SLAMS COFFEE USE
 Says Its All Right as a Medicine But Not as a Food—Contains Destructive Drug Caffeine.

"Tea and coffee are not in any sense food, therefore cannot add constructive 'issue to our bodies,' declares Dr. Jos. A. Aikin, of Omaha, Neb. 'This is not the worst of it,' says Dr. Aikin. 'Any substance that is not wholly a food, or that contains destructive in excess of constructive elements for tissue building, is harmful.
 "The caffeine and their in coffee and tea are cerebral stimulants, the tannic acid is an astringent, affecting especially the muscular fibers in the intestinal walls. They are useful as medicine, but not as food. Tea and coffee inebriety is increasing more rapidly than our native born population."

TE.—Children not only desire but often need a warm nourishing table drink as much as their parents. Consequently with the banishment of the cone pot from the family table INSTANT POSTUM finds ready favor. This delicious food-drink is absolutely pure and free from the coffee drug "caffeine."
